

A FULL ACCOUNT OF A
Terrible and Bloody
FIGHT,

BETWEEN

The Dutch and English Forces in Flanders, against the French; with a particular Relation of a Great and Singular Victory obtained over the French.

LETTERS from Brussels of the 23d. of May, Old Style, gives this particular Account; That the French having drawn together a Body of about 15000 Men, between Mabuege and Bouchian, were Attacked by a Body of the Confederate Troops, consisting of 12000 Men, under the Command of Count Wal-dick; That the Victory was very uncertain, both behaving themselves very Courageously, till a fresh Body of 4000 Brandinburgh Horse Advancing, fell upon the Rear of the French, putting them into great Confusion by breaking their Ranks—The Damage of the French Party were very considerable, having lost near 5000 Men, who were Killed upon the Spot, besides several that were made Prisoners of War.—The Confederates lost not half the Number of Men, but keeping the Field, made themselves Masters of a great Booty—

They further add, that by Letters from Rotterdam, they received the Advice of the Arrival of the Earl of Malebourgh, Lieutenant General of His Majesties Forces of Great Britain, who had Ordered Nine Battalions of English to be in Readiness, and 'twas believed, they would take the Field in three or four days.—And some are of Opinion, they with their Troops will this Season, make an Incurſion into the French Territories. They further ſay, that the Flat-boats lying there, would be ready in ſome few days to ſet Sail, with what Sweediſh Troops are to Compleat the Horſe now in England; ſo that in few days they may be expected here, in order to give their help towards the Reducing of the Irish Rebels, who are now the chief Support of the French King's declining Cauſe.
